Executive MBA : Study Tour in New York

On the week of Feb 6-10, the Executive MBA 8 went on the second study tour in New York City. After facing the long lines at the Consulate to get their visa and enduring delayed flights, everyone was very happy to meet on Sunday evening for a nice Indian dinner. The tour formally began on Monday morning at the host institution, Baruch College in the heart of Manhattan. Participants were warmly welcomed by Ann Brandwein, Associate Dean of the College, who gave them the overview of their upcoming week. A mix of lectures, case studies, guest presentations and company visits, the tour focussed on corporate finance and financing.

Everyone took full advantage of the City. A Broadway show, jazz bars and a basket ball game featuring the infamous NY Knicks were among the highlights of the cultural side of the visit. Along with the unavoidable bar hopping, late night discussions and beer drinking.

On the academic side, the one day case study in Baruch's state of the art Trading Room provided an opportunity for the participants to make a strong impression on local faculty with excellent presentations. The week ended with the visit of Bloomberg which impressed everyone with their futuristic and pragmatic business vision. We only missed the Sunday blizzard which quieted the City, but only for a while...

Business Week : March 6 to March 10

Business week at RMS is more than a forum with professionals. It has become an occasion for exchanges between a hundred of companies present, the students and the RMS alumni. Each year, the participants attend high level thematic conferences given by some of the most important economic decision makers and business men... As each year, Business week at RMS will transform the campus into a «Business Contact Village» organized around a main daily theme. Distributed for the occasion, the Forum guide lists and promotes all the companies present at the event. The guide becomes a real «Bible» which is kept by all the participants who find there all the information and useful contacts concerning the companies they encounter. This event reflects RMS' position as a "Real-life Academy".
